Fig 2. Changing the Light Source only changes the reputation

Let me make the connection: in the same way that shadows change in shape and appearance, depending on the type and location of light, reputations can also be shifted, people can see you as one thing one day and something completely different the next depending on the circumstances. But the interesting thing about shadows is that, even though you can see them, you can't do much more with them - you can't feel them; you can't hear them; and you can't smell them. As a matter of fact, if you take away the light source, the shadow no longer exists. This brings to question one thing: if reputations are like shadows, a mere facade of what truly exists, then why do we spend so much time trying to develop them?

For me, not having a healthy relationship with my father created a void that I tried to fill by seeking attention and approval from others. So when I was faced with a situation that required choosing reputation over character, I chose reputation, because 1) I wasn't mature enough and 2) I didn't love myself enough to confront my personal issues that made me value what others thought of me more than what I thought of myself. I needed to work on developing my character.

Becoming Great requires an understanding that character is paramount to your success, because, unlike reputation, character is consistent. It doesn't need a light source to survive; it doesn't hinge off of what other people say or believe; character is to your life what a steady foundation is to a house - build a strong foundation and the house will forever stand.

Are you able to distinguish between who you are and what people think about you? Before you move into this week's activities, prepare yourself by making sure you understand the difference between character and reputation.

DAY TWO: ACCEPT IT

Have you accepted the fact that your success is not about what people say about you but more about who you are?

CHARACTERISTICS OF REPUTATION AND CHARACTER

REPUTATION	CHARACTER
Temporary	Eternal
Rust	Rust Proof
Weak Foundation	Solid Foundation

Now, considering the descriptions in the chart above for both reputation and character, in your GIUY Success Journal, identify what people commonly say about you (your reputation) and then identify your principles/who you are at your core (your character). What are the consistencies or inconsistencies between the two?

DAY THREE: EMBRACE IT

It's easy to hide who you are on the outside, but each time we go through pressure the real you will come out. In my story about Mrs. Paneros, I had to embrace who I really was at my core, in spite of the temptation to try and save my reputation. Embracing my charac-
